Fire In The Valley The

Fire in the Valley is the definitive history of the personal computer, drawn from interviews with the people who made it happen, written by two veteran computer writers who were there from the start. Working at InfoWorld in the early 1980s, Swaine and Freiberger daily rubbed elbows with people like Steve Jobs and Bill Gates when they were creating the personal computer revolution.

To be fair, Fire in the Valley offers some fascinating insights into the evolution and rapid explosion of the PC industry. But each time that it feels like the book is finally getting interesting, Freiberger abruptly changes focus and loses whatever narrative momentum he'd been building. Another unfortunate limitation of this book is its age.
